PREFACE

This genealogical work, prepared chiefly for private circulation, does not claim to be, and is not, a complete record of this interesting family, which has played so important a part in the civil, military, and religious history of this country. Prepared chiefly for private use, it fulfills, however, the design of its promoters.

The editor desires to make thankful acknowledgment of the valuable assistance he has received from various members of the Tefft and Tifft families, more especially from Mr. Oscar W. Tefft, of Greenwich, N. Y., and Mrs. Maria E. Tifft, of Buffalo.

THE TEFFT ANCESTRY

The year 1000 A. D. marks the date on, or near, which surnames came into recognized use. They were usually taken from the estates owned by the bearers of such names, indicating, therefore, landed proprietors. In process of time the use of surnames was extended to natural objects, trades, and professions, and even to personal traits and characteristics.

The name Tefft has undergone the usual changes in spelling, being variously written Tefft, Teffe, Tifft, and Tift. It is of Saxon origin, and means "the place where a house has stood." The theory advanced by some that it is the anglicized form of the French "Thevet" is probably fanciful, and without historical warrant, for the name appears in early Saxon annals, and its origin and meaning are attested by William Arthur, and other etymological authorities.

The first persons of the name in America were William and John Teffe, or Tefft, the former of whom settled in Boston not later than 1635, and the latter in Portsmouth, R. I. It is probable that these brothers were accompanied by a sister Sara, for there stood until recent years on Cole's farm, near Cole's Station, Warwick, R. I., a memorial slab, with the following inscription: "Here lieth ye bodie of Sara Tefft, interred March 16, 1642." This stone is now in the possession of the Rhode Island Historical Society, and is the oldest monumental slab in the State.

It will be observed by the reader of the following pages that the Teffts were an intensely patriotic family, their names frequently appearing on the rosters of regiments in the Colonial, Revolutionary, and 1812 wars. They were equally prominent in civil affairs, holding both local and State offices, sometimes for very many years. In religious faith they were generally Baptists, the prevailing sect in Rhode Island, a faith to which many of their descendants are loyal to the present time.

There was a large emigration from Rhode Island to Washington County, New York, in 1766, Nathan Tefft, Nathan, Jr., William, and Asa being the first of the name in that quarter. Other Teffts penetrated into Vermont, some remaining but a short time, and removing to Erie County, New York, while others remained permanently, the family name being still perpetuated there.

The first emigrants were:

1. William. m. Anna ——.
2. John. m. Mary Barber.
3. Sarah (probably), d. March 14, 1642.

Samuel resided in Kings Town, R. I., where he was a freeman in 1677. He was fined 20s. for not attending Jury of General Court of Trials, but this fine was remitted the following year because he had not been duly summoned by the General Sergeant. He and twenty-six others bought, on June 28, 1709, the tract called Swamptown, a portion of vacant lands in Narragansett. He died in 1725, and his will was proved Dec. 20, 1725. His estate inventoried at £1,010, 2s. 8d. a considerable one for those days, itemized as follows: Wearing apparel, sword, 11 cows, 4 oxen, 4 steers, 4 yearlings, 5 calves, 121 sheep, 5 mares, 3 horses, 15 swine, 2 linen wheels, 2 spinning wheels, worsted combs, 6 beds, 2 warming pans, cider, cidermill, 22 geese, silver, and £155 in bonds.

She was b. 1658, and d. in 1740, leaving an estate of £401, 12s. Her father was a man of extraordinary mechanical genius, and he cut the die for the first issue of the "Pine Tree Shilling."

7 Joshua Tefft and Sarah —— had:

(24) Peter, b. March 14, 1671/2.

Joshua resided in Kings Town, R. I. He was captured while fighting on the Indian side during King Philip's War. Roger Williams writes thus to Governor Leverett, of Massachusetts, January 14, 1676: "This night I was requested by Capt. Fenner and other officers of our town to take the examinations and confession of an Englishman who hath been with the Indians both before and after the fight. His name is Joshua Tift, and he was taken this day by Capt. Fenner at an Indian house half a mile from where Capt. Fenner's house (now burned) did stand. He was asked how long he had been with the Narragansetts, and answered twenty-seven days, more or less. He said he was at his farm a mile and a half from Puttuckquamscott where he hired an Indian to keep his cattle, himself proposing to go to Rhode Island, but the day he prepared to go a party of Indians came and told him he must die. He begged for his life, and promised he would be servant to the Sachem for life, and his life was given him as such slave. He was carried to the fort where were eight hundred fighting men. His eight cattle were killed. He said he was in the fort and waited on the Sachem till the latter was wounded, of which wound he died some days afterward.

At the court martial a soldier testified that he had seen Joshua fire at the English several times, but he was not able to certify that any shot took effect. Looking at this matter dispassionately, one might say in charity that Joshua may have fired blank cartridges, and under compulsion. The witness must have had remarkable eyesight to have singled out an individual marksman at the probable distance.

The really serious charge brought against Joshua was that he was a heathen, not having attended the Baptist services for several months, and, incidentally, that he had married a Wampanoag squaw. Roger Williams had perhaps forgotten his own experience at the hands of the Massachusetts Puritans, and that compulsory attendance on Divine Service sent him to Rhode Island to enjoy the religious and personal liberty which he denied to Joshua Tefft.

So the latter was executed.

If Joshua's story were true (and it was never disproved), he was an unwilling slave, and not a rebel soldier. He was executed January 18, 1676, a sentence that was considered pleasing to God.

(903) Edgar b. ——. d. young.
(904) Frank Holbrook, b. ——. m. October 2, 1879, Mary Platt, of Beaver Dam, Wisconsin.

William Harrison Tefft was b. in Little Valley, Cattaraugus County, N. Y., July 11, 1819. At the age of 15 he had resolved to become a printer, and for this purpose he secured a position on the Cattaraugus Whig. His ambition soon over-leaped the narrow limits of this field, and he directed his attention to mercantile life, and spent five years with Walter Chester, of Gerry, N. Y., in general merchandise. He then entered the service of Sidney Shephard & Co., the largest hardware dealers in western N. Y. His industry and ability won him a partnership in the firm, and he remained here fourteen years. Facilities for extending one's business were but few in those earlier days, but young Tefft pushed on westward into the then distant Wisconsin, over into Canada, and along the southern shore of Lake Erie, travelling by boat and stage, and creating business by his indomitable energy and sagacity.

In 1854 he associated himself with a Mr. Moore in the manufacture of car wheels and castings, and the house secured the contract for furnishing the Buffalo & Brantford Railway, the neucleus of what is now the Grand Trunk System. In 1855 he rem. to Detroit and engaged with modest success in the stove trade, buying out also the interests of Mr. Edward Shephard in a hardware store. In 1860 he purchased a foundry, the lease of which he temporarily surrendered when the Civil War broke out, fearing that impending disaster would befall the entire country. A government contract for furnishing sheet iron camp stools, tin cans, and canteens, soon fortified Mr. Tefft with renewed courage and vigor, and in 1863 he went into the stove business, a venture so successful that three years later he and Mr. Jeremiah Dwyer founded the now famous Detroit Stove Works, whose products are distributed over North and South America, Europe, Asia, and Australia.

Mr. Tefft was president not only of the Detroit Stove Works, but also of the Banner Tobacco Works, the Frankfort Blast Furnace Company, of the Detroit and Saline Plank Road Company, a director of the First National Bank of Detroit, of the Fire and Marine Insurance Company, of the Eldridge Sewing Machine Company, and of the Detroit Steel and Brass Manufacturing Co., and a heavy stockholder in the Michigan Stove Works.

A man of fine physical presence, genial manners, and public spirit, Mr. Tefft easily stood in the fore-front of Detroit's honored citizens. He d. June 19, 1884. His wife, Lurinda Martha, was the dau. of William and Martha (Stebbins) Holbrook, b. in Forestville, N. Y., March 13, 1819. She was a lineal descendant of Ephraim Robertson, a Revolutionary soldier. She d. January 26, 1872.

Mr. Tifft, like so many others of this widely extended family, was a self-made man. His early years were spent on his father's farm, and he gained in the district school the average education of the country-side in those days. When twenty-four years old he rem. to Buffalo, engaging in the dairy business, which he developed into a large wholesale trade, supplying hotels, lake steamers, and grocers. He retired with a comfortable fortune in 1872, and confined himself thereafter, until his death, to his real estate interests. He was a devoted member and for fifteen years a trustee of Grace M. E. Church; generous, but wisely discriminating in his charities, helpful to those less fortunate than himself, and a living illustration of what industry, integrity, and piety can do in fashioning the life and character of man.

Mrs. Maria E. Tifft has earned the gratitude of that portion of the Tefft and Tifft families whose records were compiled by her and published in 1896. To her literary labors she has added those of a charitable and religious nature, having been a member of the Woman's Educational and Industrial Unions of Buffalo since their organization.
